

Chanson du Soir

Chelsea Camille, soprano and David Isaacs, guitar

Chanson du Soir, soprano Chelsea Camille and classical guitarist David Isaacs, performs an enticing fare of music that will delight your ears and calm your spirit. In performance, they offer historic background and delightful anecdotes about the composers, their lives and music. As a chamber music group, the soundscape Chanson du Soir offers is quite unique. Currently, there are fewer than ten professional duets in the world exploring and performing the vast historic and modern repertoire for voice and guitar. Established in 2005, the Southern California natives have quickly garnered national recognition as a premier guitar and voice duo. They have been featured artists on concert series throughout the United States. Driven by a passion to share their art, Chanson du Soir has booked, promoted, and completed over thirty tours of various regions of the US. Chelsea is the photographer, contacts the presenters and makes the travel arrangements while David takes care of the graphic design, web pages, and CD artwork layout. They split the driving. In addition to performing, Chanson du Soir teaches Masterclasses, adjudicate competitions, collaborate with composers on new works, and transcribe works for their unique pairing. Chanson du Soir is passionate about their music, they love to share that enthusiasm with audiences.
